Sacred Freedom

"Others might have forgotten;

But never can I

May the tricolour of my country;

Fuels very high!!

The citizens of India suffered under the British rule for decades. The British officials looted the country of its wealth and treated Indians poorly. India once known as golden bird, suffered immensely at the hands of Britishers. They treated Indians as slaves. They made them toil hard. But our courageous, brave soldiers finally gave birth to our national flag on 1947. It was made out of hand spun cotton on Charkha which was dyed with free colours of peace, courage and greenery and symbolise freedom. There is a journey it came from, a journey of suppression, depression and blood shed to overthrow the foreign domination. There contribution not only provided us liberty for practising our needs, but left us open like animals out of cage. Freedom to express freedom of education, freedom of dance, sing, play, freedom of religion. Now with diverse colour, creed, gender, religion, can worship any god. Freedom of religion provides an individual to change its beliefs or religion. One can practise or propagate in any temple, gurudwara, church and mosque. In this diverse country religion is one of the basic institution of any society.

It can be understood as a social system in which there is common faith, worship, rituals, customs and traditions. It brings solidarity, people belonging to particular religion identify and live together. It has developed ethical values to the people, care for parents, helping poor and disabled, honesty and other things are preached. It unites our country and binds it together which always helps in fighting the negativity. But all this could only be possible only because of endeavours of our soldiers.
Though they were mitigated but there never ending spirit and their love for our country didn't came to halt and they laboriously helps in blossom of our country. It was not a flower that blossomed overnight, but a mountain created by waves and waves of molten magma of blood shed of martyrs. If there is one peace on the face of earth
